What job i'm looking for? My positive points

I'm looking for fitting and turning job as an artisan or artisan assistant. I have trained and I can say I'm good at assembling, repairing equipment in manufacturing specifications. I have a good knowledge and understanding when it come to the use of drills, grinders and welding machine. I have worked with different types of valves, pumps, motors including pipes.

I am capable of repairing component to the same standard or better than before the breakdown and effective fault finding in both hydraulic and pneumatic operating component

Since I can say I have been trained enough but still willing to learn much more in engineering, but I have done theory and practical before my trade and training, I'm good in machining as well as milling machine, measuring according to given schematic drawing, using precision measuring equipment
