What job i'm looking for? My positive points

Young innovative at my mid-twenties would like to exercise my various portable skills with regard to Programming skills, Computing skills, Business skills, Interpersonal skills, Communication skills and so forth and ready to branch into the working environment of any company/organization to acquire the necessary working experience nor share the experience that I have.

I strongly believe that every individual is more important and can contribute towards growth when given the opportunity regardless of the position, so what more if we work together towards one goal hence I consider myself the right person for your company because I am self-disciplined, hard worker, quick to adapt to any environment, I am able to work independently even in the team, forever positive and above all, I possess all the qualities required by you to continue being on top of your competitors and deliver quality to clients.

I am a graduate at the University of South Africa (National Diploma in Information Technology) which contained 30 ICT modules. I have done Business informatics (1, 2 and 3) English in business, Databases and Oracles, Software Implementation and programming modules. During my academics I have gained great skills in System development, C++, JavaScript, HMTL, CSS, MYSQL, Oracle, and Database Management. I am very passionate about Database Management, Oracle and Business Informatics or anything to do with Information Technology and currently looking to improve the skills which I have acquired throughout my academic studies and thought the program in currently in, as well as to provide an opportunity for me to grow in the profession that I desire. Gaining new experience will provide me with the insight and skills needed to add valuable contribution to my professional growth and in turn adding value to an organization.
