What job i'm looking for? My positive points

I am a person who is working hard, i never rest until any mission and vision i want is completely done. in 2009 i went to college to be a fire fighter but after finishing the training, i realized that i have a passion of working with people as like in the business industry, then is when i opened a turn shop, i saw how the business was so productive then i opened branches in my place, I worked in business for 9 (nine years) happily working with customers where i was even going to them convincing them to come and buy from me rather than other shops and it was done the way i wished, until in 2019 janaury where i realised that i need a support of qualification on what im enjoying then is where i studied marketing management, and now im working at chicken licken, because i want to grow and do more to on this department hence i apply for this vacancy
